A. The Commission Orders That:	29

I. STATEMENT

1. On July 13, 2012, Dex Media East, Inc. (Dex Media), filed a Petition for Rulemaking in which Dex Media asked the Commission to open a rulemaking proceeding to modify Rule 4 Code of Colorado Regulations (CCR) 723-2-2307.¹ That filing was made pursuant to § 24-2-103, C.R.S., and Rule 4 CCR 723-1-1306² and commenced Proceeding No. 12M-817T, In the Matter of the Petition to Dex Media East, Inc., to Open a Rulemaking Docket, Issue a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, and Amend 4 CCR 723-2, § 2307. On October 22, 2012, Dex filed an Amended Petition for Rulemaking (Amended Petition).

2. On December 5, 2012, by Decision No. C12-1402 and as pertinent here, the Commission granted the Amended Petition and stated that it would issue a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (NOPR) based on the rule language contained in the Amended Petition. By that Decision, the Commission also closed Proceeding No. 12M-817T.

3. On December 12, 2012, by Decision No. C12-1404, the Commission issued its NOPR regarding proposed amendment of Rule 4 CCR 723-2-2307 (Rule 2307). The proposed amendment in legislative drafting (i.e., red-lined) format was appended to the Decision as Attachment A. Proposed Rule 2307 as it would be published if adopted was appended to the Decision as Attachment B. In that Decision, the Commission assigned this rulemaking proceeding to an Administrative Law Judge (ALJ).

4. Decision No. C12-1404 scheduled a January 28, 2013 rulemaking hearing. The Decision included dates for submitting written comments on the proposed amendment.

¹ This Rule is found in the Rules Regulating Telecommunications Providers, Services, and Products, Part 2 of 4 Code of Colorado Regulations 723.

² This Rule is found in the Rules of Practice and Procedure, Part 1 of 4 Code of Colorado Regulations 723.

5. On December 12, 2012, as required by statute, the Commission submitted a draft of the proposed amendment and a statement concerning the proposed amendment to the Office of the Executive Director in the Department of Regulatory Agencies.

6. Notice of the rulemaking and of the January 28, 2013 hearing was published timely in The Colorado Register.

7. The following participants submitted initial comments on the proposed amendment to Rule 2307: Boulder Regional Emergency Telephone Service Authority (BRETSA); Dex Media East, Inc. (Dex Media); and Qwest Corporation, doing business as CenturyLink QC, El Paso County Telephone Company, CenturyTel of Colorado, Inc., and CenturyTel of Eagle, Inc.³

8. The following participants submitted reply or response comments addressing the initial comments on the proposed amendment to Rule 2307: BRETSA, Colorado Telecommunications Association (CTA), CenturyLink, and Dex Media.

9. At the time and place noticed, the ALJ called the January 28, 2013 rulemaking hearing to order.⁴ The ALJ heard oral comments from Jerry Enright of Commission Staff;⁵ Brooks E. Harlow, Esquire, on behalf of Dex Media; Timothy J. Goodwin, Esquire, on behalf of CenturyLink; Richard L. Corbetta, Esquire, on behalf of CTA; and Michael L. Glaser, Esquire, on behalf of BRETSA. The ALJ admitted Exhibits No. 1, No. 2, and No. 3 into the rulemaking record.

⁴ This was the first of two rulemaking hearings in this Proceeding. The transcript for this rulemaking hearing has been filed in this matter.

10. On April 16, 2013, Dex Media submitted a Notice of Supplemental Authority.
11. On May 24, 2013, by Decision No. R13-0628-I, the ALJ scheduled a July 11, 2013 rulemaking hearing. The Interim Decision identified issues on which the ALJ asked for additional comment. In addition, the Interim Decision identified two documents that the ALJ had reviewed on a website;⁶ notified the participants of the ALJ's action; and advised the participants of their opportunity to address or to respond to the information. Finally, the Interim Decision included dates for submitting additional written comments.
12. Notice of the rulemaking and of the July 11, 2013 hearing was published timely in The Colorado Register.
13. The following participants submitted initial comments in response to Decision No. R13-0628-I: BRETSA; CenturyLink; and Dex Media.
14. The following participants submitted response/reply comments addressing the initial comments submitted in response to Decision No. R13-0628-I: BRETSA, CenturyLink, CTA, and Dex Media.
15. At the time and place noticed, the ALJ called the July 11, 2013 rulemaking hearing to order.⁷ The ALJ heard oral comments from Brooks E. Harlow, Esquire, on behalf of Dex Media; Timothy J. Goodwin, Esquire, on behalf of CenturyLink; Richard L. Corbetta, Esquire, on behalf of CTA; and Joseph P. Benkert, Esquire, on behalf of BRETSA. The ALJ admitted Exhibits No. 4 and No. 5⁸ into the rulemaking record.

⁶ The documents are found on a website identified, and referred to, in written comments filed in response to Decision No. C12-1404.

⁷ This was the second of two rulemaking hearings in this Proceeding. The transcript for this rulemaking hearing has been filed in this matter.

⁸ These exhibits are the two documents identified and discussed in Decision No. R13-0628-I.

16. In accordance with § 40-6-109, C.R.S., the ALJ now transmits to the Commission the record in this Proceeding along with a written recommended decision.

II. FINDINGS AND DISCUSSION

17. In accordance with § 24-4-103(2.5)(a), C.R.S., on December 12, 2012, the Commission submitted a draft of the proposed amendment to Rule 2307 to the Office of the Executive Director of the Department of Regulatory Agencies for a determination whether “the proposed ... amendment may have a negative impact on economic competitiveness or on small business in Colorado.” Had the Executive Director of the Department of Regulatory Agencies, or her designee, determined that the proposed amendment to Rule 2307 may have such a negative impact, that individual could have directed the Commission to perform a benefit-cost analysis of the proposed amendment. Neither the Executive Director of the Department of Regulatory Agencies nor her designee directed the Commission to perform a benefit-cost analysis of the proposed amendment. The Commission did not prepare a benefit-cost analysis of the proposed amendment.

18. No one requested, pursuant to § 24-4-103(4.5)(a), C.R.S., that the Commission issue a regulatory analysis of the proposed amendment to Rule 2307. The Commission did not prepare a regulatory analysis of the proposed amendment.

19. Rulemaking is a quasi-legislative function. Rulemakings encompass a range of administrative agency determinations: at one end of the continuum are regulations based principally on policy considerations, and at the other end of the continuum are regulations the need for which, or the language of which, turns upon proof of discrete facts. Citizens for Free Enterprise v. Department of Revenue, 649 P.2d 1054 (Colo. 1982). The rule at issue in this rulemaking falls toward the policy end of that continuum.

20. The statutory authority for the amended Rule 2307 adopted by this Decision is found in §§ 24-4-103, 40-2-108, 40-3-101, 40-15-101, and 40-15-201, C.R.S.

21. As pertinent here, § 40-15-201(2), C.R.S., lists the services and products that are regulated by the Commission pursuant to part 2 of article 15 of title 40, C.R.S. Among those services and products is “white pages directory listing” (§ 40-15-201(2)(d), C.R.S.).

22. Rule 4 CCR 723-2-2308(a) contains the basic local exchange service standard. By that Rule and as pertinent here, the Commission requires each Local Exchange Carrier (LEC)

[to] construct and [to] maintain its telecommunications network so that the instrumentalities, equipment, and facilities within the network [are] adequate, efficient, just, and reasonable in all respects in order to provide the following services ... to each of its customers within its service area:

* * *

(XI) White pages directory listing as described in [Rules 2307(a) and 2307(b)];

* * *

A. Rule 2307 and Identification of Provisions at Issue.

23. At present, Rule 2307(a)(I) requires each LEC to cause to be published annually a telephone directory containing, for each exchange served by the LEC, listings⁹ for all basic local exchange customers served by that exchange except for those customers who request that their listings not be included (White Pages telephone directory). Each White Pages telephone directory must include a list of all exchanges in the local calling area.¹⁰ This is the White Pages

¹⁰ As defined in Rule 4 CCR 723-2-2001(ccc), a local calling area is: “the geographic area approved by the Commission in which customers may make calls without payment of a toll charge for each call. The local calling area may include exchange areas in addition to the serving exchange area.”

telephone directory publication requirement. Except for wording changes to clarify the Rule, this provision is not the subject of this rulemaking.

24. Rule 4 CCR 723-2-2001(v) defines customer as “a person who is currently receiving jurisdictional telecommunications service.” Consistent with the definition of customer in Rule 4 CCR 723-2-2001(v), the mandated White Pages telephone directory contains listings for residential basic local exchange service customers and for business basic local exchange service customers. At present, Rule 2307(a)(I) neither differentiates between listings for residential customers and listings for business customers nor requires two White Pages telephone directories (one residential, one business) for an exchange. The White Pages telephone directory publication requirement does not change under the proposed amendments to Rule 2307.

25. Some commenters state, assume, or suggest that the proposed Rule 2307 amendments, if adopted, will apply only to residential White Pages telephone directories. The ALJ finds this position untenable in light of the Rule 4 CCR 723-2-2001(v) definition of customer. The White Pages telephone directory publication requirement is for one White Pages telephone directory, and that directory contains listings for both residential and business basic local service customers. In addition, in the NOPR, the Commission did not propose to amend Rule 2307(a)(I) to change the White Pages telephone directory publication requirement. Further, the ALJ notes that no commenter provides language, and arguments in support, that would amend the White Pages telephone directory publication requirement to mandate two White Pages telephone directories: one for residential customer listings and one for business customer listings. Finally, the ALJ finds little or no public benefit in amending Rule 2307 to mandate a White Pages telephone directory for residential customer listings and a separate White Pages telephone directory for business customer listings. The current practice, which appears to be working well, is to have one White Pages telephone directory. There is little evidence in the rulemaking record on this issue as the commenters do not discuss whether amending the White Pages telephone directory publication requirement would be in the public interest.

26. In addition to listings for all basic local exchange service customers and the information and instructions required by Rule 2307(b), each White Pages telephone directory must contain the content specified in Rule 4 CCR 723-2-2504(l)(VI).¹¹ That Rule requires that each Incumbent Local Exchange Carrier, referred to in the Rule as the White Pages provider, provide space in the customer guide pages of the “White Pages” telephone directory for the purpose of notifying customers how to reach LECs to:

- (A) Request service;
- (B) Contact repair service;
- (C) Dial directory assistance;
- (D) Reach an account representative;
- (E) Request buried cable local service; and
- (F) Contact the special needs center for customers with disabilities.

This provision is not the subject of this rulemaking.

27. White Pages telephone directories may include a separate section (commonly referred to as the Blue Pages) in which listings for federal, state, and local governmental agencies are found. The Blue Pages are not the subject of Rule 2307 and are not the subject of this rulemaking.

28. In addition to the mandated White Pages telephone directory, one or more Yellow Pages directories may be published and distributed. A Yellow Pages directory contains listings and advertising paid for by businesses and professional services and may contain other information. The Yellow Pages directory is not the subject of Rule 2307 and is not the subject of this rulemaking.

29. At present, Rule 2307(a)(II) establishes the requirement for annual revision of a LEC's White Pages telephone directory and provides a mechanism by which the LEC can obtain an extension of time for that annual revision. Except for wording changes to clarify the Rule, this aspect of Rule 2307 is not the subject of this rulemaking.

30. At present, Rule 2307(a)(III) requires each LEC to provide, free of charge, White Pages telephone directories to the Commission; to provide, upon request and free of charge, additional White Pages telephone directories to customers with more than one access line; and to provide to public libraries, upon request, "free copies of the directories for all exchanges served by the LEC within the state." Except for wording changes to clarify the Rule, this aspect of Rule 2307(a)(III) is not the subject of this rulemaking.¹²

31. At present, Rule 2307(a)(III) requires each LEC to cause the White Pages telephone directory to be distributed "free of charge to all customers served by that directory."¹³ This aspect of Rule 2307(a)(III) is the White Pages telephone directory distribution requirement and is the subject of this rulemaking.

32. At present, Rule 2307(b) specifies information that the White Pages telephone directory must contain and where in the White Pages telephone directory that required information must be found. This provision is the subject of this rulemaking.

¹² The amendments to Rule 2307(a) move these requirements to Rule 2307(a)(IV) but do not change the pertinent language of existing Rule 2307(a)(III).

¹³ During the rulemaking and in this Decision, this requirement sometimes is referred to as saturation distribution or saturation delivery.

33. At present, Rule 2307(c) addresses directory assistance and intercepts. Except for clarifying changes to the Rule, this aspect of Rule 2307 is not the subject of this rulemaking.

B. Rule 2307(a)(III).

34. The proposed amendments to Rule 2307(a)(III) focus on the White Pages telephone directory distribution requirement. In Decision No. C12-1404 (the NOPR), the Commission retained the White Pages telephone directory distribution requirement and proposed to amend Rule 2307(a)(III) to give a LEC the option of satisfying that requirement by informing customers that they will not receive a White Pages telephone directory unless they request delivery of the White Pages telephone directory (the opt-in process).

35. As set out in Attachment A to the NOPR, the Commission proposed this language, shown in legislative drafting format, for Rule 2307(a)(III):¹⁴

(III) Upon issuance, the LEC shall ~~cause a copy of the published directory to be distributed free of charge to all customers served by that directory.~~ ensure that all customers served by that directory have access to the directory. A LEC satisfies this requirement if it, or its directory publisher, offers customers the option to receive the directory upon request, free of charge, and within a reasonable time of the request. If a directory required by this rule is not distributed automatically to all customers, then the LEC or its directory publisher shall:

(A) notify customers of the option to request the directory, and

(B) provide all customers in a directory that is distributed automatically to all customers (except those who affirmatively request not to receive directories) or alternative printed form the information required by subparagraphs 2307(b)(III) through (VI).

Decision No. C12-1404 at Attachment A at 1.

36. One commenter suggests that no amendment to Rule 2307(a)(III) is needed because the rulemaking record contains little Colorado-specific information showing that an amendment is warranted or is in the public interest. The proposed amendment to the Rule rests on policy considerations and serves to give LECs increased flexibility with respect to satisfying the White Pages telephone directory distribution requirement. For these reasons, the ALJ finds that the presence or absence of Colorado-specific information is not persuasive or dispositive with respect to whether to amend Rule 2307(a)(III) as proposed. In addition, the ALJ finds that the rulemaking record includes Colorado-specific information. The ALJ will consider the proposals to amend Rule 2307(a)(III).

37. By far the most contentious aspect of the proposed Rule 2307(a)(III) amendment is whether the Rule should contain the opt-in process proposed in the NOPR or an opt-out process. Under an opt-in process, a customer will not receive a White Pages telephone directory unless the customer requests the directory. Under an opt-out process, a customer will receive a White Pages telephone directory unless the customer requests not to receive the directory.

38. In support of the opt-in process, commenters state: (a) while White Pages telephone directories are a valuable source of information to their users, their usefulness is reduced because the way in which customers access listing information has changed, and is changing, as a result of telecommunications technology changes, customers' environmental concerns, and customers' reliance on other directories (e.g., specialty or organizational directories); (b) White Pages telephone directory users have access to the Internet and other sources for obtaining, at no cost, the listing information found in the White Pages telephone directory; (c) the experience in other states is that, when there is an opt-in process, a significant and growing percentage of basic local exchange customers elect not to receive White Pages telephone directories; (d) there is customer interest in avoiding delivery of often-bulky White Pages telephone directories that the customer neither wants nor uses; (e) the number of telephone customers who are “cord-cutting” (that is, relying exclusively on cellular telephones) is increasing, and there is a concomitant reduction in the usefulness of the White Pages telephone directory because the directory often does not contain listings for cellular telephones; (f) the general public has an interest in avoiding the waste and cost associated with printing, recycling, and disposing of unwanted White Pages telephone directories; (g) where the White Pages telephone directory distribution requirement is retained, state regulators have tended to move from saturation delivery to an opt-in process; and this transition has occurred without significant complaints from affected customers; and (h) amending Rule 2307(a)(III) to include the opt-in process does not diminish the pro-customer provisions and public safety information required by Rule 2307 because they are retained and must be provided to all customers.

39. In support of an opt-out process, commenters state: (a) White Pages telephone directories continue to be a valuable source of information to their users and should be distributed or available to the greatest extent possible; (b) many White Pages telephone directory users in Colorado may not have access to the Internet or alternative sources for obtaining, free of charge, the listing information found in the White Pages telephone directory, and, often, those without access are the most vulnerable populations (e.g., elderly individuals; low-income individuals); (c) irrespective of what other states may have done or experienced, Colorado has experience only with saturation delivery; (d) given that Colorado has experience only with saturation delivery, customers may be confused or frustrated by a flash-cut transition from saturation delivery to an opt-in process; (e) customers may focus any directory-related confusion and frustration on the LEC and, in Colorado’s competitive telecommunications environment, a LEC cannot afford to have its customers displeased with any aspect of its service because the customers may choose another provider; and (f) in light of the foregoing, if the Commission determines that there should be an opt-in process to satisfy the White Pages telephone directory distribution requirement, the better course of action is to have a transition period of one or two years during which a LEC could use an opt-out process and at the end of which the Commission could assess the impact of that option.

40. As the Commission recently found, “[t]he ability of customers to list their name, address, and phone number in the white pages directory is an essential service for customers.” Decision No. C13-0203 at ¶ 28 (emphasis supplied).¹⁵ Because the directories are so important, the Commission ruled that “white pages directory listings” remain under Part 2 [of article 15, title 40, C.R.S.], even in ECA [Effective Competition Area] designated areas, and the LECs in ECAs are obligated under Rule 2307 to publish and [to] distribute directories.

Id. The participants in this rulemaking agree that White Pages telephone directories are important and serve necessary purposes. As a result, they did not question the need for the White Pages telephone directory.

41. The issue for the rulemaking participants is distribution of White Pages telephone directories. More specifically, the participants principally debate about the type of White Pages telephone directory distribution requirement that best satisfies the public interest.

42. The ALJ agrees that Rule 2307(a)(III) focuses on the White Page directory distribution requirement. In reaching her decision with respect to amending this Rule, the ALJ balanced the following considerations: (a) the White Pages telephone directory is an essential telecommunications service; (b) customers have an interest in easy access to emergency telephone numbers, residential listings, and business listings; (c) wherever possible, it is best to avoid customer confusion or uncertainty; (d) many Colorado customers, often very vulnerable populations or populations with a greater need for the White Pages telephone directory, have no or limited access to the Internet; (e) an individual customer likely has an interest in avoiding delivery of one or more White Pages telephone directories that the customer does not want; (f) the way in which people obtain information is changing, and White Pages telephone directory listings are available, at no cost, on-line; (g) the percentage of Colorado telephone customers who are “cord-cutting” has increased, and there is a concomitant reduction in the usefulness of the White Pages telephone directory to the extent the directory does not include listings for cellular telephones; (h) there is a general public interest in reducing the waste and cost associated with printing, recycling, and disposing of unwanted White Pages telephone directories; and (i) to the extent possible, an amendment to Rule 2307 must minimize the loss of the valuable consumer protection and safety information that, pursuant to current Rule 2307, must be in the White Pages telephone directory.

43. The ALJ finds that it is not necessary to choose either the opt-in process or the opt-out process. The ALJ finds that the better resolution, and the resolution that is in the public interest, is to amend Rule 2307(a)(III) to include both options. With the inclusion of both options, amended Rule 2307(a)(III) allows a LEC to have the flexibility to select the option that, in the LEC’s opinion, is best suited to its customers and to each White Pages telephone directory.¹⁶ In addition, the existence of additional options does not require a LEC to use one of the additional new options; if it elects to do so, the LEC may continue to use saturation delivery throughout its service territory.

44. New Rule 2307(a)(III)(B) contains the opt-in process. Under that process, the presumption is that, absent action by the customer, the customer will not receive a White Pages telephone directory. As proposed, Rule 2307(a)(III) provides these requirements and customer protections: (a) the customer has the option to receive the White Pages telephone directory upon request, free of charge, and within a reasonable time of the customer's request; (b) the customer receives notice of the option to request a White Pages telephone directory;¹⁷ and (c) each customer receives the information required by Rules 2307(b)(III) through 2307(b)(V) in written form, either in the White Pages telephone directory provided to the customer upon request or in the alternative printed form that is provided to all customers other than those who request a White Pages telephone directory. Decision No. C12-1404 at Attachment A at 1. In Rule 2307(a)(III) as adopted, the ALJ amplifies and clarifies the requirements and customer protections as follows: (a) the customer notice of the opt-in process must include written instructions concerning how to request delivery of a White Pages telephone directory; (b) the customer notice of the opt-in process must be written and must be verifiable; (c) the customer's request for delivery of a White Pages telephone directory must be verifiable; (d) the LEC must maintain records with respect to delivery of the alternative printed form to customers who do not receive a White Pages telephone directory and must maintain records with respect to delivery of a White Pages telephone directory to a customer that requests a White Pages telephone directory.

45. By design, new Rule 2307(a)(III)(B) specifies neither the means by which written notice is given to the customer nor the means by which the customer requests delivery of a White Pages telephone directory. The LEC will determine the mechanics of implementing the opt-in process.

46. As amplified and clarified, the ALJ finds that the opt-in process requirements and customer protections are necessary and reasonable. The ALJ will include them in amended Rule 2307(a)(III)(B).

47. New Rule 2307(a)(III)(C) contains the opt-out process. Under that process, the presumption is that, in the absence of action by the customer, the customer will receive a White Pages telephone directory free of charge. With respect to the opt-out process, the ALJ finds that the following requirements and customer protections are necessary and reasonable: (a) unless the customer chooses not to receive a White Pages telephone directory and informs the LEC of that choice, the customer will receive the White Pages telephone directory free of charge; (b) each customer receives written and verifiable notice that the customer may request that a White Pages telephone directory not be delivered, receives written instructions as to how to inform the LEC that the customer chooses not to receive a White Pages telephone directory, and receives written notice that the customer later may choose to receive a directory; (c) the customer's notice of election not to receive a White Pages telephone directory must be verifiable; (d) a customer that chooses not to receive a White Pages telephone directory later may request a White Pages telephone directory; (e) the customer's request for a directory must be verifiable; (f) a customer that requests a White Pages telephone directory will receive the directory free of charge and within a reasonable time of the customer's request; (g) each customer receives the information required by Rules 2307(b)(III) through 2307(b)(V) in written form, either in the White Pages telephone directory provided to the customer or in the alternative printed form that is provided to all customers who choose not to receive a White Pages telephone directory; and (h) the LEC must maintain records with respect to delivery of the alternative printed form to all customers who request that a White Pages telephone directory not be provided and must maintain records with respect to delivery of White Pages telephone directories to all other customers served by the White Pages telephone directory. The ALJ will include these customer protections in new Rule 2307(a)(III)(C).

48. By design, new Rule 2307(a)(III)(C) specifies neither the means by which written notice is given to the customer nor the means by which the customer requests deliver of a White Pages telephone directory. The LEC will determine the mechanics of implementing the opt-out process.

49. Commenters raise the issue that amending Rule 2307 may increase a LEC's costs. The ALJ addresses below the financial impacts of amended Rule 2307(a)(III) on a LEC.

50. All LECs are subject to the Rule 2307 White Pages telephone directory requirements. There are two types of LECs: Incumbent Local Exchange Carriers (ILECs) and Competitive Local Exchange Carriers (CLECs). An ILEC¹⁸ can meet the Rule 2307(a) White Pages telephone directory requirements by: (a) publishing and distributing itself the White Pages telephone directory; or (b) entering into a publication and distribution contract with a directory publisher. A CLEC can meet the Rule 2307(a) White Pages telephone directory requirements by: (a) publishing and distributing itself the White Pages telephone directory; (b) relying on the ¹⁸ As discussed above, the ILEC is the White Pages provider and has the obligations listed in Rule 4 CCR 723-2-2504(l).

ILEC in accordance with Rule 4 CCR 723-2-2504(l); or (c) entering into a publication and distribution contract with a directory publisher.

51. As pertinent to this discussion, proposed Rule 2307(a)(III) states:

Upon issuance, the LEC shall ensure that all customers served by that directory have access to the directory. A LEC satisfies this requirement if it, or its directory publisher, offers customers the option to receive the directory upon request, free of charge, and within a reasonable time of the request. If a directory required by this rule is not distributed automatically to all customers, then the LEC, or its directory publisher, shall

(Emphasis supplied.)

52. One commenter observes that, with respect to White Pages telephone directories, the Commission: (a) has jurisdiction over, and regulates, LECs and places on LECs the obligation to publish and to distribute White Pages telephone directories; (b) does not have jurisdiction over, and does not regulate, directory publishers; and (c) does not regulate the contractual relationship between a LEC and the directory publisher with which the LEC may contract for directory-related services. The commenter states that the proposed amendment to Rule 2307 references a directory publisher and, as worded, could leave the impression that the White Pages telephone directory distribution obligation rests, at least in part, on the directory publisher, an entity not regulated by the Commission. To eliminate ambiguity and possible confusion, the commenter suggests that, if amended, Rule 2307(a)(III) contain no reference to directory publisher.

53. The ALJ agrees with the commenter that the Commission has jurisdiction over LECs and that LECs have the responsibility, and the legal obligation, to publish and to distribute White Pages telephone directories. The ALJ also agrees that, as proposed by the Commission, amended Rule 2307(a)(III) is unclear as to the person who has the obligation to distribute the White Pages telephone directory. As a result, the ALJ agrees with the commenter that amended Rule 2307(a)(III) should not reference the directory publisher. As amended, Rule 2307(a)(III) contains no reference to directory publisher.

54. One commenter notes the existence of costs associated with implementing the proposed opt-in process,¹⁹ notes that proposed Rule 2307(a)(III) does not address the question of which entity (LEC or directory publisher) is responsible for those costs, and requests that the Commission make clear in an amended Rule that the LEC is protected against any adverse financial impact that may result from the rule amendment. The ALJ finds that revising Rule 2307(a)(III) to remove the reference to directory publisher addresses the financial impact issue. The LEC will choose the method it will use to comply with the White Pages telephone directory distribution requirement. This means that the LEC controls, or has the opportunity to address, the costs associated with its choice. Thus, for example, if a LEC chooses to publish and to distribute itself its White Pages telephone directory and if the LEC chooses to use either the opt-in process or the opt-out process, the LEC has decided to absorb the related costs. On the other hand, if a LEC chooses to enter into a contract with a directory publisher and if the LEC chooses to use either the opt-in process or the opt-out process, the issue of the entity that will bear the related costs is an issue that can be negotiated.

55. One commenter questions the need for a separate alternative printed form that contains only the information required by Rules 2307(b)(III) through 2307(b)(VI) and that, pursuant to proposed Rule 2307(a)(III)(B), will be provided to a customer that chooses not to receive a White Pages telephone directory. This commenter states: (a) this requirement appears to create a new category or class of directories: the emergency information directory, a directory that contains only the information required by Rules 2307(b)(III) through 2307(B)(VI); (b) the new emergency information of directory has different publication and distribution requirements and rules than does the White Pages telephone directory; (c) the customer need for, and the customer interest in receiving, an emergency information directory are not established; (d) providing a separate and unrequested emergency information directory to customers who have elected not to receive a White Pages telephone directory has the potential to irritate those customers and to diminish the benefit realized from reducing the waste and cost associated with printing, recycling, and disposing of unwanted White Pages telephone directories; and (e) the cost of publishing this new class of directory will fall on ILECs, which (according to the commenter) serve less than one-third of the telecommunications market in Colorado, and on no other telecommunications carriers. If the Commission includes the alternative printed form requirement in amended Rule 2307(a)(III), the commenter requests that the Commission make it clear that the alternative printed form is the obligation of the directory publisher.

56. Other commenters take the position that the separate alternative printed form is necessary, serves an important public safety and customer protection function by providing important information to customers who do not receive a White Pages telephone directory, and is in the public interest. They state: (a) the public safety benefit and the customer protection benefit of having the information required by Rules 2307(b)(III) through 2307(b)(VI) readily available to customers are unquestioned; (b) the elimination of saturation distribution of the White Pages telephone directory means that customers who do not receive the directories will not have ready access to that important information; and (c) the alternative printed form is an effective way in which to assure that all customers have access to the information, either in the White Pages telephone directory or in the alternative printed form.

57. The ALJ will retain the alternative printed form as proposed. First, there is no dispute about the critical importance of the information required by Rules 2307(b)(III) through 2307(b)(VI), which is the information the alternative printed form will contain. Second, at present, due to the White Pages telephone directory saturation delivery requirement, every customer has access to information required by existing Rule 2307(b) (I) through 2307(b)(III), which is the same information as that required by proposed Rules 2307(b)(III) through 2307(b)(VI). A change in White Pages telephone directory distribution should not affect, and certainly should not reduce or eliminate, customers' ready access to this information. Third, given the importance of the information required by proposed Rules 2307(b)(III) through 2307(b)(VI) and given the advisability of having this information as widely and readily available as possible, the ALJ finds that customers must have access to the information in some printed form, either the White Pages telephone directory or the alternative printed form.

58. The ALJ finds the argument that the alternative printed form requirement affects only ILECs to be unpersuasive. As discussed above, all LECs have the Rule 2307 White Pages telephone directory publication and distribution obligation.

59. The ALJ will not adopt the suggestion that the Commission make it clear that the alternative printed form is the obligation of the directory publisher. As discussed above, the Commission cannot place an obligation on a directory publisher that is not a LEC. In addition, as discussed above, LEC has control of this issue. If a LEC elects to use a directory publisher, the question of financial responsibility for costs can be addressed in contract negotiations. If a LEC decides to publish itself and to distribute itself the White Pages telephone directory, the LEC has full knowledge of the associated costs and makes its decision after taking those costs, among other factors, into consideration.

60. The ALJ finds that, for these reasons and for others discussed above, proposed Rule 2307(a)(III)(B) is necessary; is reasonable; and is in the public interest.

61. Consistent with the discussion above, the ALJ finds that the proposed Rule 2307(a)(III) language should be changed. The ALJ finds that Rule 2307(a)(III), as set out in the appendices to this Decision, should be adopted.

C. Rule 2307(b).

62. The proposed amendments to Rule 2307(b) focus on the non-listing content of the White Pages telephone directory. As set out in Attachment A to the NOPR, the Commission proposed this language, shown in legislative drafting format, for Rule 2307(b):

(b) Directory information and instructions. Each directory shall include:

(I) On the front cover, Aan indication of the area included in the directory and the month and year of issue or alternatively, the month and year through which the directory is effective, shall appear on the front cover. ~~The phone service pages must include~~ information on every ILEC and CLEC with listings included in the directory. Information pertaining to emergency calls, such as police and fire departments, shall appear conspicuously in the front part of the directory.

(II) Phone service pages including information on every ILEC and CLEC with listings in the directory.

(III) On the front page of the directory, information pertaining to emergency calls, such as for the police and fire departments, including “9-1-1.”

(IV) If provided by governmental public safety agencies, alternative numbers to use in case of an outage of the 9-1-1 system and non-emergency numbers to reduce inappropriate use of 9-1-1, either contained or referenced in the front part of a directory.

~~(H-V) The directory shall include: i~~Instructions for placing local and long distance calls; instructions for placing calls to repair and directory assistance services; the business office website, if applicable; and the telephone number of the LEC's business offices appropriate to the area served by the directory- or alternative information publication.

(H-VI) ~~Each directory shall include,~~ In a prominent manner in the instructional section of a directory, notice of the Commission's current toll free telephone number and the customer's right to make inquiries regarding telecommunications services to the Commission.

Decision No. C12-1404 at Attachment A at 2.

63. All commenters support the proposed amendments.

64. One commenter suggests one change to proposed Rule 2307(b)(IV): require that, if provided by the agencies, non-emergency telephone numbers for public safety agencies (e.g., Public Safety Answering Points (PSAPs)) be on the first page of a White Pages telephone directory and in the alternative printed form. In support of its proposal, the commenter states: (a) although there will be costs associated with this addition, the benefits of the enhanced public safety outweigh the costs; (b) placing the non-emergency telephone numbers on the first page of the directory will reduce 9-1-1 calls that pertain to non-emergency situations, and reducing the number of non-emergency calls will free up 9-1-1 lines and will allow PSAP dispatchers more quickly to answer 9-1-1 calls that pertain to emergency situations and to dispatch first responders; and (c) placing the non-emergency telephone numbers on the first page of the directory will provide an alternative telephone number for individuals to call in the event that, due to a system outage or other reason, they cannot reach 9-1-1 to report emergency situations.

65. Other commenters oppose this suggested change, at least insofar as it concerns the White Pages telephone directory.²⁰ These commenters state: (a) proposed Rule 2307(b)(IV) addresses all public safety concerns because the White Pages telephone directory and the separate printed form will include, if provided by the agencies, non-emergency telephone numbers for public safety agencies; (b) the disagreement pertains to how specific Rule 2307(b)(IV) must be with respect to where in the White Pages telephone directory the non-emergency telephone numbers will appear; (c) putting non-emergency telephone numbers for public safety agencies with or near 9-1-1 information on the first page of the directory has the potential to dilute 9-1-1 messaging and to confuse those using the directory; and (d) BRETSA is the only public safety agency to participate in this rulemaking, and other members of the 9-1-1 community (for example, the 9-1-1 Task Force) should have an opportunity to consider the possible impact of, and to comment on, mandating that non-emergency telephone numbers for public safety agencies appear on the first page of a White Pages telephone directory.²¹

66. The ALJ will not adopt the suggested change to proposed Rule 2307(b)(IV). In reaching her decision on this issue, the ALJ balanced the following considerations: (a) proposed Rule 2307(b)(III) requires information pertaining to emergency calls, including 9-1-1, to be on the first page of the White Pages telephone directory; (b) there is a public safety benefit to providing to the public the non-emergency telephone numbers for public safety agencies; (c) there is an existing abbreviated dialing code (i.e., 3-1-1) for “[n]on-emergency governmental police and other governmental service information” (Rule 4 CCR 723-2-2741(b)(II)) which appears to reduce the need for the suggested change to proposed Rule 2307(b)(IV);²² (d) wherever possible, it is best to avoid customer confusion, and there may be a risk of confusing White Pages telephone directory users if there is too much information on first page of the directory; (e) wherever possible, it is best to avoid customer uncertainty, and there may be a risk of diluting 9-1-1 messaging if there is too much, potentially conflicting, information on first page of the directory; (f) proposed Rule 2307(b)(IV) allows flexibility with respect to placement of the non-emergency telephone numbers, and nothing prevents a LEC from putting that information on the first page of the directory if it chooses to do so; and (g) BRETSA and its representative who made the oral presentation at the July 2013 rulemaking hearing are knowledgeable about the concerns of the 9-1-1 community; nonetheless, all members of the 9-1-1 community should have an opportunity to consider the possible impact of, and to comment on, mandating that non-emergency telephone numbers for public safety agencies appear on the first page of a White Pages telephone directory,²³ and that did not occur in this proceeding.

²² The impact is unknown because no participant discussed the availability of 3-1-1 dialing.

67. The ALJ finds that Rule 2307(b) as proposed is necessary; is reasonable; and is in the public interest.

68. Consistent with the discussion above, the ALJ finds that, with minor language changes, proposed Rule 2307(b) should be adopted. The ALJ finds that Rule 2307(b), as set out in the appendices to this Decision, should be adopted.

D. Additional Matters and Findings.

1. Rules 4 CCR 723-2-2504(l)(II) and 2504(l)(III).

69. As discussed above, Rule 4 CCR 723-2-2504(l) (Rule 2504(l)) is an interconnection rule that contains a White Pages telephone directory requirement. During the rulemaking, the participants noted that, if Rule 2307(a)(III) is amended, then Rule 2307(a)(III) and Rule 2504(l)(III) may be inconsistent with the amended Rule 2307(a)(III).

²³ This could be addressed, for example, in a future rulemaking proceeding.

70. To address this issue, one commenter proposes that Rule 2307(a)(III) be amended to add a reference to Rule 2504(l)(III) and that Rule 2505(l)(III) be amended as follows:

(III) Each LEC shall, in turn, cause a White Pages telephone directory to be delivered to each of its customers ~~(one directory per access line purchased)~~ in accordance with the requirements of rule 2307(a).

Dex Further Supplemental Comments and Proposed Rule Changes filed July 1, 2013.

71. Review of Rule 2504(l) reveals that, if Rule 2307(a)(III) and Rule 2504(l)(III) are amended, then Rule 2504(l)(II) may be inconsistent with both of those amended Rules. To address this issue, the ALJ will amend Rule 2504(l)(II) as follows:

(II) Unless the LEC provides written notice limiting the number of White Pages telephone directories it will receive, each ~~Each~~ White Pages provider shall cause each LEC to receive one directory for each access line the LEC serves in the directory provider's operating area.

72. The ALJ finds that amending Rules 2504(l)(II) and 2504(l)(III) in order to eliminate potential inconsistency among and between Rule 2307(a)(III), Rule 2504(l)(III), and Rule 2504(l)(II), all of which reference or concern the White Pages telephone directory distribution requirement, is within the scope of this proceeding. In addition, the ALJ finds that the changes to Rules 2504(l)(II) and 2504(l)(III) are reasonable; are necessary; and provide clarity with respect to the White Pages telephone directory distribution requirement. The ALJ will amend both Rules.

73. The amendments to Rules 2504(l)(II) and 2504(l)(III) as adopted by this Recommended Decision are shown in Appendix A to this Recommended Decision in legislative drafting format. In addition, Rules 2504(l)(II) and 2504(l)(III) as adopted by this Recommended Decision are contained in Appendix B as Rules 2504(l)(II) and 2504(l)(III) will read when published in The Colorado Register and the Code of Colorado Regulations.

2. Rule 2307(a) and Rule 2307(b).

74. In addition to the changes discussed above, the ALJ made wording changes to clarify Rule 2307(a) and Rule 2307(b). The wording changes are not substantive.

75. The amendments to Rule 2307(a) and Rule 2307(b) as adopted by this Recommended Decision are shown in Appendix A to this Recommended Decision in legislative drafting format. In addition, Rule 2307(a) and Rule 2307(b) as adopted by this Recommended Decision are contained in Appendix B as Rule 2307(a) and Rule 2307(b) will read when published in The Colorado Register and the Code of Colorado Regulations.

3. Additional findings.

81. Rule 2307(a), Rule 2307(b), Rule 2504(l)(II), and Rule 2504(l)(III) attached to this Recommended Decision at Appendix A and Appendix B are clearly and simply stated; and their meaning can be understood by any person required to comply with them.

82. Rule 2307(a), Rule 2307(b), Rule 2504(l)(II), and Rule 2504(l)(III) attached to this Recommended Decision at Appendix A and Appendix B do not conflict with any provision of law; do not duplicate any other rule; and do not overlap any other rule.

83. This Recommended adopts, with modifications, the proposed Rule 2307(a) and Rule 2307(b) noticed in Decision No. C12-1404 and its Attachments and adopts Rule 2504(l)(II) Rule 2504(l)(III), which are reasonably within the scope of the rulemaking as noticed in that Decision.
